Lohri is a vibrant winter festival celebrated mainly in Punjab, Haryana, and parts of North India. Lohri is deeply connected to agriculture, harvest traditions, and community bonding, making it one of the most culturally rich festivals of India.

The festival is usually celebrated on January 13 every year, a day before Makar Sankranti. Lohri festival celebrations bring families and communities together around a bonfire, symbolising warmth, gratitude, and renewal. This celebration was organized outside the Polytechnic Department, with the Campus Director Mr. Vivek Parihar, Principal's HOD's or teachers from all departments and students of KCIM department also present.
